Sitting around the office, watching fascism on the rise in the news among mainstream (and other) Republicans on television, PDD (Please Don't Destroy) get really angry and worked up, yelling at the TV. Suddenly, a magic entity appears in the middle of the room, Merlin or a Fairy Godmother or someone. After sitting around and having a brief intellectual conversation, which includes the thought that the American Right sees fascism as its magic wand to get away with whatever they want, it is determined that PDD have a magic wand as well, as a countermeasure. PDD transforms the world in about a minute, shown with special effects, all Republicans throughout the nation transformed into toads, fascist European leaders also transformed in some funny way, and then, the crème de la crème, what to do with Trump, oh, what to do with Trump! Then someone's phone rings and they all wake up. They look at each other. "Did you dream it too???" This moment echoes and visually reverberates as PDD now faces the camera, asking the viewer, "Did you dream it too???"
